RICHMOND, 6: DANVILLE, 2.

Well, the Richmond baseball laddies lurned the trick again yesterday afterneon, and though the game was far from being as interesting as the opener of the day previous, still it had its thrills, which several times sent the crowd to its feet and kept them fairly comfortable, despite the chilly breezes which swept the grandstand and

The defeat of Danville can readily be attributed to the wildness of McDonald in the first two rounds, for it was in these two that the locals went the rounds for four tailies, the margin by which the visitors were beaten. The Clay City crowd both outbatted and outfielded the winners. Against the clear error sheet of the losers are three miscues for Pop's Lawmakers, and in the batting department Eckstone was found for nine safe bingles, three of which were corking two-sackers, while all the home team could for was to land but six times. to was to land but six times.

Men Fast on Bases.

The Capital Cityites were never better on the bases, Reeve being especially good in this line. Twice in succession he pilifered a bag, the second time doing that difficult feat of swiping third. Tilman and little count O'Neil also broke the eighth commandment by each stealing a sack. Danville was not at all backward either when it came to swiping bags. Four times was the erstwhile detective, Cowan, unable to catch them in the act. Wallace should come in for a little mention for the able manner in which he backed up second on Cowan's wild heave in the first session, when Reggy stole. This good habit of backing up the throw was again illustrated in the same round, when Reeve, with time to burn, threw high to Shaffer, and pulled him off the bag in a beautiful stop. Happy Eckstone was onto his job, and could have received the ball had the manager muffed it.

In the second the infield showed steadiness, after a slight ascension, which all but gave the visitors a tally. McDonald pasted one to Reeve, who was slow getting the throw to Shaffer. McDonald landed safely, and O'Neil called to Shaft to head off Powell, who started for third. The leader had thrown the ball to Eck-but the runner.

During the muddle McDonald thought ie had a chance to reach second, and was just going down, when Kirk, whipped the leather over to Shaffer, making the hird out. The double play was pulled off by O'Neil and Shaffer in the iast. Doyle drove a hot one to the second cacker, who barely managed to squeeze onto it and get it over to the initial bag at time to prevent Reggy from returning, it was a clear piece of robbery on the part of O'Neil, for it should have gone or a hit.

part of O'Neil, for it should have gone for a hit.

Old "hit'em-out" Titman and Wallace carried off the batting honors for the winners with two neat singles apiece, all of which counted in the run-getting. For the losers, Hessler was the "soak-em" kid, with two singles and a double. His double brought in two runs. Reeve, Kirk-patrick, Shaffer and Eckstone each caught the opposing twirler napping for a suicide apiece. On the other hand, the redoubtable Happy fairly ate up the only two attempted sacrifices of Danville.

As was the case in the first game, Richmond started right off the reel to go the circuit, After reiting Danville in

As was the case in the first game, Richmond started right off the reel to go the circuit. After retiring Danville in short order, Titman began by walking. Roove sacrificed him to second, and on Heffron's out from pitcher to first the runner took third and secred a moment later on Wallace's single. Kirkpatrick fanned, In the second three more runs were annexed on four bases on balls, a sacrifice, three stolen bases and a wild pitch. Another came in the fourth on a pass, a sacrifice and a hit. The sixth and last crossed the pan in the seventh on a base on balls, a hit and a long fly to right.

Danville's two lone tallies came in the seventh. O'Noll's error gave Sterzer a life. The southpaw stole second, and after Reggy had drawn a pass the two galloped home on Hessler's two-bagger.

Danville plays here again to-day. Salve and Hinton will be selected by Shaffer to work to-day. The Danville battery will be selected this morning.

LYNCHBURG WINS SECOND CONTEST

Pitcher Oakley, of the Champions, Holds Roanoke to but One Run.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] [Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
LYNCHBURG, VA., April 19.—Lynchburg wen from Roanoke this afternoon in the first inning, by an error at first by Raley, followed by two clean singles, the score being 3 to 1.

It was a pitcher's battle, Oakley, the local southpaw, having the best of it. He was wild, but steadled down when hits would have meant runs. The locals fielded perfectly, not the semblance of a misplay characterizing their work. The game was played in a high, cold wind, but 1,200 fans remained to the end.
